To access British resources at FamilySearch.org, go to <https://familysearch.org/> and click on either "Family Tree" or "Search."

Family Tree

Under Discover Your Deceased Ancestors click on Place of Birth, Christening, Death, Burial, or marriage and type in the locality of interest. Then search that way.

Different Search Methods Under Search

Books

Family History Books is a collection of more than 150,000 digitized genealogy and family history publications from the archives of some of the most important genealogical libraries in the world.

Catalog Searches

- Places – Type in the name of a parish or other locality and if that is one of the jurisdictions in the catalog, options will appear.
- Keywords – combine localities and record types or localities and selected events.

Records Searches

- Search Historical Records
- Search by name and event – Type in the name of an ancestor and then the event and possible date or dates, as well as locality of desired.
- Search by locality – There are two ways to do this. The first way is to type in the country and county under location and then add name of ancestor and information.
The second way is to see if a parish of interest has been extracted/indexed. Select a life event and then under the place (birth, marriage or death) type the exact name of the parish. Then click on search. You can also add a surname and thus narrow the search.
- Research by Location – Then click on "Records." Under "Research by Location," hover your cursor over the British Isles on the map and then click. Choose a location, click and then click on “Start researching in _____” and the historical records for the requested locality with display. Then select the desired record.

Wiki

There are almost 83,000 articles in the FamilySearch Wiki. Search the Wiki to answer questions about difficult topics like parish chest records, poor law, probate records and jurisdictions, etc. Keep in mind that jurisdictions and other important information can also be found at maps.familysearch.org.
